Discuss how Sahomi’s experience reflects the hardships and challenges endured by thousands of Japanese-American citizens during World War II. Ask students to use these pages to develop a sequence that describes how Sahomi arrived at Topaz and adapted to her new environment. Language Arts: REVIEW with students the necessary elements of any story: a main character, setting, and plot. Remind students that the beginning of the story should be interesting. It should introduce the main character and the character’s problem. The middle of the story should provide more information about the problem and how it develops. The end should provide the resolution to the problem. It should also close the story in an interesting way. Tell students they will begin drafting their fantasy stories, guided by the writing plans they have developed	Academic Standards: RF.3.3cL.3.4cRF.3.3aL.3.4b RI.3.3RI.3.1RI.3.7RI.3.4L.3.4aL.3.5bRF.3.4aRF.3.4bW.3.7W.3.10 W.3.4SL.3.1

Then have them identify the prefixes and suffixes on that line. Line 2: -ness, un-, -ly Have students think of other words that have each affix and use the words in complete sentences. Reading Skills: TELL students that, rather than rereading the entire selection a third time, they will look at specific parts of the selection. Explain that they will read with a writer’s eye. This means they will look at the text closely to see what makes it a well-written piece. Language Arts: REMIND students that they should be concentrating on getting their thoughts on paper during the drafting step. They can make changes to their ideas during the revising step, and they can correct mistakes in spelling, grammar, usage, and mechanics during the editing/proofreading steps. Model completing the draft of your fantasy story. Allow students to offer suggestions about the draft, and incorporate their ideas when appropriate. Be sure to narrate your thoughts as you complete the draft. 		Tell students they will focus on just the content of their stories during the revision. They will have the opportunity to correct spelling and grammatical errors during the next week. Review the elements of narrative writing in general and fantasy stories in particular. Remind students to make sure they have incorporated these elements into their stories. Model revising the first half of your story. Point out where you add vivid adjectives and adverbs, as well as descriptive details to make the writing more interesting. Ask students to make suggestions for revisions, and incorporate their ideas where appropriate. REVIEW with students that adverbs are describing words that make writing more interesting. An adverb can describe a verb, an adjective, or another adverb. An adverb tells who, what, when, or how much something happens. REVIEW with students the formation of cursive lowercase letters v and y as overcurve letters.
